Hello,

I am a recent graduate from Rochester Institute of Technology with a degree in Web & Mobile Computing, with concentrations in web development and software development. I am seeking an opportunity that would help expand my knowledge in the computing domain and acquire a chance to be a part of exciting projects with a great company.

With 4 years of nurtured experience in software development, from Server-side to Client-side programming, I have procured various skills and methodologies that make me more than capable of developing a sustainable software architecture with a variety of languages, (primarily JavaScript, PHP, and Java) libraries, frameworks, and many other software technologies.

What I pride myself most in is:

- Meshing well within a team that follows strict or loose project management
- Great communication and leadership qualities
- Quick understanding of business/project details
- Ability to adapt to new and popular technology
- Understanding my limits
- Utilization of all available resources when needed
- Taking responsibility for all my work
- Making sure tasks deadlines are met and not abandoned

I would greatly appreciate if you would please review my resume to get better insight into my skills, experience and past projects. I hope this helps with the evaluation process and I would like to thank you for your consideration and time!

Best,
Jason Kirshner
